The Psychology of Language [Intro video]
Psycholinguistics or psychology of language is the study of the interrelation between linguistic factors and psychological aspects.. The field is concerned with psychological and neurobiological factors that enable humans to acquire, use, comprehend and produce language.The discipline is mainly concerned with the mechanisms in which languages are processed and represented in the mind and brain.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF LANGUAGE | Semantic Scholar
Using language is central to our social and cultural lives. Psychologists and psycholinguists have extensively studied the processes involved in speaking and listening, reading and writing. Most of this work has been done in laboratory contexts, where participants - usually psychology students - carry out rather unusual tasks, such as reading aloud meaningless letter strings.
