The Reed Organ Man

Although badged for Waters (New York) this organ was clearly built by Shoninger. It is his Centennial model, built in 1886. It has all the bells, but no whistles! The massive case is unusual (to say the least). The action has an extra half-set of reeds, and Bernard's unusual sub-coupler assembly. $3500.00 FOB San Francisco.

There are many who are unaware of the difference between a Harmonium and an American Reed Organ. The main difference is that whereas in the Harmonium the wind is blown outwards from the bellows, as with a pipe organ but the American Reed Organ actually sucks the air into it, the foot bellows therefore creating a vacuum.
