Through the grapevine. A Hedonist in the Cellar is not the ramblings of an over-opinionated wine snob. McInerney is far too wise to make the mistake of indulging in analytic overkill. As one vineyard owner tells him, if you think too much about a wine, 'you will kill it. After all, you don't need to be a gynaecologist to make love'.

Drinking Deeply. He has now returned with another witty compilation, "A Hedonist in the Cellar: Adventures in Wine." One of the charms of "Bacchus and Me" was its tone of droll self-effacement. McInerney cast himself as the uncredentialed interloper of wine chroniclers — a mere "wordsmith with a wine jones," as he put it.
