Amico Fragile - Fabrizio De André PFM in concerto

In 2000, a tribute concert called Faber, amico fragile... (Faber, frail friend... - titled after De André's nickname in Genoese and the title of one of his best-known songs) was held at Teatro Carlo Felice in Genoa, organized by Dori Ghezzi and her Fabrizio De André Foundation. It featured Ghezzi, both of De André's sons and several prominent Italian artists from all genres, giving their own takes on De André's repertoire.

Amico Fragile - Fabrizio De André | Shazam

Fabrizio De André (18 February 1940 – 11 January 1999) was a leading Italian singer-songwriter. In his works he often told stories of marginalised and rebellious people, above all prostitutes, that were seen by De André as an answer to the bourgeois prissiness. De André was born in Genoa, Liguria, Italy.

Fabrizio De André - Wikipedia

"Amico fragile" ["Frail friend"], also written entirely by De André, is a detached and cynical account, delivered through seemingly unconnected images in the form of a stream of consciousness monologue, of an evening De André spent with a group of friends, during which everybody (including himself) got drunk; the singer-songwriter was forced to sing in spite of him not really wanting to, and, in his intoxicated state, exposed all of his friends' vices and defects in an improvised bawdy ...

Amico fragile di Fabrizio De Andrè Significato

De André, l'amico fragile. ... Fabrizio De André è stato ricordato e celebrato, forse ogni singolo giorno dal momento della sua scomparsa, come non era accaduto prima a nessun grande artista italiano. Questo testimonia il vuoto tangibilmente grande che ha lasciato nel cuore e ancor più nel bisogno di conforto dei molti che lo hanno amato ...

Amico Fragile | Tour / Date

Amico fragile © 1975 Fabrizio De André/Francesco De Gregori De André wrote "Amico fragile" in a drunken rage after attending a party of rich Italians vacationing on Sardinia. They were only interested in having him play guitar and sing his songs, whereas De André wanted to engage people in discussions about events going on in Italy.
