Catch-22 (Catch-22, #1) by Joseph Heller

Heller was not unknown in publishing circles prior to Catch-22. His first published work appeared in the fall 1945 issue of Story, an issue dedicated to short fiction by returning servicemen. For several years after the war, he wrote what he called "New Yorker-type" stories about Jewish life in Depression-era Brooklyn.

SparkNotes: Catch-22

Catch-22 became an American classic in the latter half of the twentieth century and elevated Heller as one of the most widely regarded post-World War II satirists. Heller went on to publish Something Happened (1974), Good as Gold (1979), and Closing Time (1994), a sequel to Catch-22, as well as short stories, plays, screenplays, and the 1998 memoir Now and Then.

Catch 22 Joseph Heller

In a 1977 essay on Catch-22, Heller stated that the "antiwar and antigovernment feelings in the book" were a product of the Korean War and the 1950s rather than World War II itself. Heller's criticisms are not intended for World War II but for the Cold War and McCarthyism .
