Let's explore the mysteries of light and electricity. From how light reflects, to correcting defects in our eyes. From understanding charges, to lighting up cities. From Newton's prism to Faraday's generator, it's all there. So by taking this course, we will master the topics of (but not limited to) class 10th NCERT physics.

Chapter 7. Plane Electromagnetic Waves and Wave Propagation

A rainbow is a meteorological phenomenon that is caused by reflection, refraction and dispersion of light in water droplets resulting in a spectrum of light appearing in the sky. It takes the form of a multicoloured circular arc. Rainbows caused by sunlight always appear in the section of sky directly opposite the sun. Rainbows can be full circles.

Figure 1.1 Due to total internal reflection, an underwater swimmer's image is reflected back into the water where the camera is located. The circular ripple in the image center is actually on the water surface. Due to the viewing angle, total internal reflection is not occurring at the top edge of this image, and we can see a view of activities on the pool deck.

Many materials have a well-characterized refractive index, but these indexes depend strongly upon the frequency of light. Standard refractive index measurements are taken at the "yellow doublet" sodium D line, with a wavelength of 589 nanometers. There are also weaker dependencies on temperature, pressure/stress, etc., as well on precise material compositions (presence of dopants, etc.); for ...
