I love horror anthology series and supernatural TV shows. Basically I will watch anything once as long as it has a supernatural element. These shows- good or bad- tell stories of ghosts, witches, vampires, werewolves and mysterious events. I would love some suggestions to add to the list. I tried to chose more horror and less sci-fi.

Demon - Anthology - Encyclopaedia Metallum: The Metal Archives
Demon Vampire by Author Virgil Allen Moore left me completely mesmerized. His attention to detail was remarkable, almost poetic at times. The plot of the story draws you in deeply and uncovers the darkest side of the vampire with almost a perverse beauty of surrendering to the blood lust.

The vampire was already on his feet; he was a good two feet taller than Buffy. "Thanks Layla." "See you tomorrow night, sugar. And," Layla batted her eyelashes at the vampire, "hope to see you again real soon, handsome." Buffy shoved the vampire (it was just weird to think of him as grandpa) out the door with all due haste. The vampire got in a ...

Demon Vampire (Redgold, #1) by Virgil Allen Moore
Vampires as we know them originated in southeastern Europe in the 18th century, and were believed to be undead suicide victims or witches, or demon-possessed corpses. Nearly every geographic area had tales of demons who drank the blood and ate the flesh of the living. The image of the vampire coalesced in Europe in the 17th and 18th centuries.

Demon Vampire is an epic paranormal dark mystery that is intended for mature audiences. The vampires within are visceral. They do not sparkle, they do not brood. They are human monsters in the very sense of the words. Demon Vampire is written with a poetic mastery that is felt in every word. It draws you in from the first sentence and never lets go.
