Analysis of the Electra Myth - Infinite Ocean

In Neo-Freudian psychology, the Electra complex, as proposed by Carl Jung in his Theory of Psychoanalysis, is a girl's psychosexual competition with her mother for possession of her father. In the course of her psychosexual development, the complex is the girl's phallic stage; a boy's analogous experience is the Oedipus complex. The Electra complex occurs in the third—phallic stage (ages 3 ...

While, in Part XII of my analysis of the Oedipus myth, I discussed how there is little to be seen as different before and after the peripeteia and anagnorisis, that is, of Oedipus losing all doubt that he's fulfilled the prophecy of patricide and incest with his mother; in the Electra myth, the despair before, and joy after, the recognition scene are truly like black and white.

Electra complex - Wikipedia

The Electra complex is also the counterpart to the Oedipus complex, developed by Sigmund Freud. The Oedipus complex comes from the Oedipus myth of Sophocles, from classical Greek mythology. Here, the famous father of psychoanalysis held the idea that every boy goes through a stage of being attracted to his mother, perceiving his father as a rival .
