British writer and painter Anna Kavan (1901 - 1968) offers up a suitable winter read: Ice (1967). This book was the last before her death. It's a rather mighty genre defier, with elements of science-fiction alongside an inventive style of prose.

Ice by Anna Kavan: 9780143131991 | PenguinRandomHouse.com ...

Kavan's descriptions of disaster are brutal and beautiful: "Ice walls loomed and thundered, smooth, shining, unearthly, a glacial nightmare...." There is little gentleness in this world, and the unrelenting fixation on male pursuit of female victimization might be read as problematic, but aligning that pursuit with a human-inflicted destruction of the entire world provides an interesting pairing to consider.
