Concerning rehabilitation — which here signifies coercive post-war regime change — Orend offers some general guidelines and justifications: a minimally just community makes every reasonable effort to (i) avoid violating the rights of the minimally just communities; (ii) gain recognition as being legitimate in the eyes of the international community and its own people; and (iii) realize the ...

Just War Or Just Peace

The question of the legality of humanitarian intervention is, at first blush, a simple one. The Charter of the United Nations clearly prohibits the use of force, with the only exceptions being self-defence and enforcement actions authorized by the Security Council. There are, however, long-standing arguments that a right of unilateral intervention pre-existed the Charter.
