Low Band Receiving Antenna Comparisons. How I compare Rx antennas. It would definitely be up for debate as to how to compare low band receiving antennas at any given location. There are many factors involved such as available real estate, complexity, cost, portability, front ...

Comparison Chart of Rx antennas.

1.5:1 across the whole band is not met if the antenna is erected at 80 feet. Series matched 20 and 15 meter dipoles at any height meet the 1.5:1 SWR goal across the band, with the plot on 15 meters being especially low across the band. However, on 10 meters, the 1.5:1 SWR goal is not met by a series matched dipole at any height.

- If your bev must function for you on all bands (ie 40 80 160) as is usually the case, then I think the 1 or 1.5 wavelength versions above will provide the best overall performance. Again, I cant over emphasize, "whatever u put up that is 200' or longer is going to provide improved low band reception" W3LPL' words cont.

With long antennas however, there will be (far) elementary dipoles having the same RF current phase, and the fields of which can then be directly summed. All that said, we can try to explain why the radiation resistance of a 20 cm wire is about four times lower than that of a 40 cm wire (in practice consisting of two 20 cm wire segments).
