In On Being a Theologian of the Cross, Gerhard O. Forde provides an introduction to this theological perspective through an analysis of Luther's Heidelberg Disputation of 1518, the classic text of the theology of the cross.

Faith and Theology: Ten propositions on being a theologian

"On Being a Theologian of the Cross", which I read at college for Christian Doctrine, walks through Luther's Heidelberg Disputation. Forde breaks each point down and explains it clearly. The book, of course, talks a lot about grace, faith, works, and what it means to truly be a 'Theologian of the Cross' rather than a 'Theologian of Glory'.

Theology of the Cross - Wikipedia

Paul Tillich was critical of the view of God as a type of being or presence. He felt that, if God were a being, God could not then properly be called the source of all being (due to the question of what, in turn, created God). As an alternative, he suggested that God be understood as the " ground of Being-Itself " .
