Constans II left the Empire in a worse state than he had found it. The Byzantine-Arab wars became increasingly one-sided and the immense resources of the Caliphate meant that any reconquest was now remotely unlikely – and more so whilst disunity through dissatisfied peasants and restless Bishops lingered on. Tang-dynasty China

Will Europe Ever Really Confront China?

From AD 395 the Visigoths become restless. They have a new ruler, Alaric, who wants more funds from the Romans, better territory, a more honourable place within the empire. In pursuit of these rather generalized aims he leads an army southwards into Greece, much of which is plundered. By 401 Alaric and the Visigoths are in Italy.
