09 / 2020 Accelerating Net Zero

The science is clear. If we want to limit global warming to 1.5°C and avoid the worst effects of climate change, we, as a planet, need to halve carbon dioxide (CO₂) emissions in this decade and reach net-zero carbon emissions by 2050.. This will require a rapid transition to a low-carbon economy, as well as the scaling of projects and technologies that will remove CO₂ from the atmosphere.
