(39) Resist not evil.--The Greek, as before in Matthew 5:37, may be either masculine or neuter, and followed as it is by "whosoever," the former seems preferable; only here it is not "the evil one," with the emphasis of pre-eminence, but, as in 1Corinthians 5:13, the human evil-doer. Of that mightier "evil one" we are emphatically told that it is our duty to resist him ().

(30) If thy right hand offend thee.--The repetition of the same form of warning has, in part, the emphasis of iteration, but it points also to a distinct danger. Not the senses only, through which we receive impressions, but the gifts and energies which issue in action, may become temptations to evil; and in that case, if the choice must be made, it were better to forfeit them.

The funny thing is: Trump knew. If you re-watch that first debate, when Trump shakes Hillary's hand at the very beginning, he reaches over with his left hand and taps Hillary on the back - directly on the wires. He was signaling to her, "I know you're cheating, you wretched villain, but I'm going to beat you anyway."
