Set in Kenya in the 1940's and 1950's and ending in the midst of the Mau Mau war, Weep Not, Child is Ngugi's most autobiographical novel; Njoroge, its child protagonist, is about the same age as Ngugi would have been at that time. The novel is an anticlimactic, truncated bildungsroman in that it follows the development of a child into adolescence but does not adequately resolve the question of what precisely the hero has learned by the end.

Weep Not, Child Summary | GradeSaver

Ngugi story Weep Not Child presented a story of conflict, determination and disappointment. Great story that keeps your imagination of a village in a distant land but you could see it, feel its struggles and the characters dispositions as the story was told. Great book and great author.
